

Cam Radio to return

CAMBRIDGE'S only local radio station, CamRadio, which went off the airwaves two weeks ago, will soon start transmitting again.

One of its DJs, Captain Nemo, said it should be back on the air again within a few weeks, even though some of the people who put together the taped two-hour programme have now left Cambridge.

The station, which broadcasts on 95.3 VHF on Sunday evenings, features sessions by Cambridge bands, news and a gig guide, as well as music that isn't usually heard on other radio stations.
